Weavers Fields and former Hague Street School

Hague Street School (now Hague School) moved out of this building in the 1960s, when Weavers Fields park was expanded and numerous local streets that had provided children to the school, Hague Street among them, were demolished or re-developed.

Hague School now occupies a similar Victorian board school building on Wilmot Street, the first street to the east to survive the clearances; this building is now the Weavers Fields community nursery.
